JP Morgan Natural Resources fund change of management

As JP Morgan announces that Ian Henderson will be stepping down as manager of the JP Morgan Natural Resources fund Sheridan Admans, investment research manager at The Share Centre, shares his thoughts.

“In light of JP Morgan’s announcement today that Ian Henderson will be handing over the day to day operations of the fund to Neil Gregson, we remain confident in the prospects for this fund under Neil’s watch. Having 20 years’ experience managing assets and a wealth of knowledge of the resource sector Ian handpicked Neil as his successor. Neil has been working with Ian on the fund for some time and so we expect the transition to be smooth.

“Obviously Ian Henderson will be sorely missed as his reputation for managing resource assets has been exceptional since he took over the running of this fund in 2000. Ian will take an advisory role until March 2013.”
