FUND OBJECTIVE

The TC Share Centre Multi Manager Adventurous Fund aims to achieve capital growth in excess of the IA Flexible Investment Index, primarily through investment in a portfolio of Collective Investment Vehicles providing diversification across a range of underlying assets.

OUR PHILOSOPHY

The funds' assets are managed on a medium to long-term perspective, which we believe reduces the ever increasing effect of market noise and should help them outperform more short-term momentum-orientated managers over the long term. This may mean that the funds underperform their sector peers in some years, as the managers prefer not to chase markets, but instead look for assets or sectors which they believe are undervalued and have strong potential for a re-rating. Therefore, it is unlikely the portfolios will experience a high turnover and equally, we seek funds to invest in that also have lower than average turnover compared to sector peers.

DIVERSIFICATION

We attempt to control risk by asset diversification, sector diversification, underlying management group diversification, a core of high profile liquid funds and a satellite of boutique managers that may have a concentration of institutional investors. We also continually monitor potential threats, which might trigger an adverse event in a particular asset class.

RISK MANAGEMENT

We spend a significant amount of time looking for and understanding inflation risk, volatility risk, capital risk and diversification risk, which can all have a detrimental impact on investment performance if not appropriately managed. Our aim is to balance the funds appropriately, to protect or take advantage of the opportunities market conditions may present. Historically, we have delivered good performance on volatility levels, below that of the sector average.

DISCRETE PERFORMANCE SUMMARY

QUARTERLY REVIEW

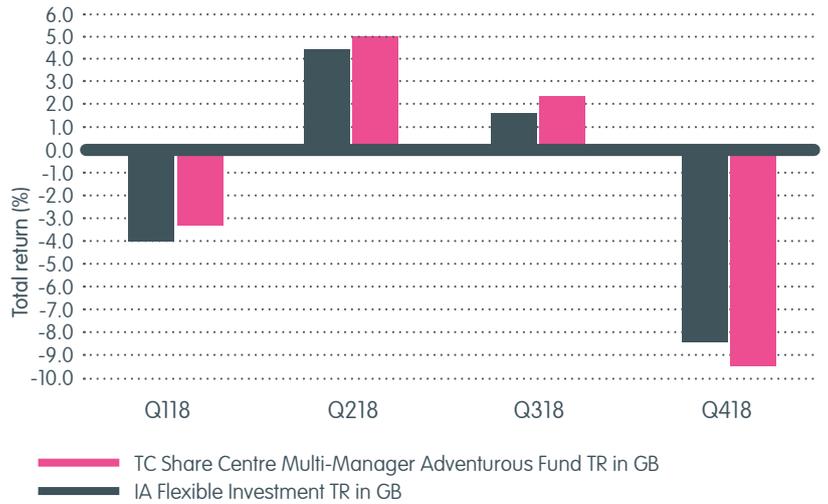

The Federal Reserve (FED) raised rates in Q4 based on steady economic data. However, its latest dovish tone (unlikely they are going to pursue aggressive actions in the near-term) signalled a cautious outlook on the US economy. Technology related stocks plunged over the fear of slower earnings growth ahead, particularly from a few high profile firms. The energy sector was squeezed by the lower oil price and downbeat expectation of China's economy.

The UK equity market fell sharply, driven by the momentum of the Brexit talks as well as the gloomy outlook on global growth, trade spats and Eurozone political uncertainty. Disappointing economic data in the Eurozone saw its equity market nosedive. Poor sentiment wasn't isolated to western developed markets as the Japanese equity market ventured into bearish territory, while the Yen, viewed as a safe haven, strengthened.

The broad sell off across markets in Q4, drove bond yields down, gold rose, whilst the Indian stock market delivered a strong return against the lower oil price and a positive outlook. The Latin American market rose against a backdrop of positive expectation around Brazil's newly elected president.

ANNUAL REVIEW

A pick up in market volatility was a more significant feature of markets in 2018, challenging market participants risk taking appetite. The rise in volatility following on from the historic low recorded in 2017, resulted from a combination of FED policy tightening, the prolonged trade spat, fears of a slowdown in the US, actual slowdowns in Europe and China and uncertainty in the Brexit outlook.

Being conscious of changing market dynamics we continued to rotate the portfolio into quality assets throughout Q4. In the portfolios equity funds we continued to opt for fund managers that have a quality bias in their company selection process and where possible with managers that are experienced investing in this market environment. Additionally, we sold our UK smaller companies position and redirected the capital into a multi cap income fund.

We doubled the gold position in the portfolio over the summer which paid off when volatility picked up in October through to the end of 2018.

Markets were certainly challenging in Q4 impacting the TC Share Centre Multi Manager Adventurous fund's performance. We do believe however, that some of our best ideas make up this portfolio and the recent addition of the Merian Chrysalis Investment Trust is one of them, which we acquired when it listed on the stock market in November. The investment trust invests in unquoted companies that are at the pre-IPO stage of their evolution. While this is a more long-term consideration in the portfolio we are cognisant of more short-term challenges, which we have been addressing and will be highlighted in Q1 2019 report.

With regards to our equity positions, we continue to focus on markets where we see value most notably in the UK and Japan, and longer term growth opportunities such as India and Brazil.

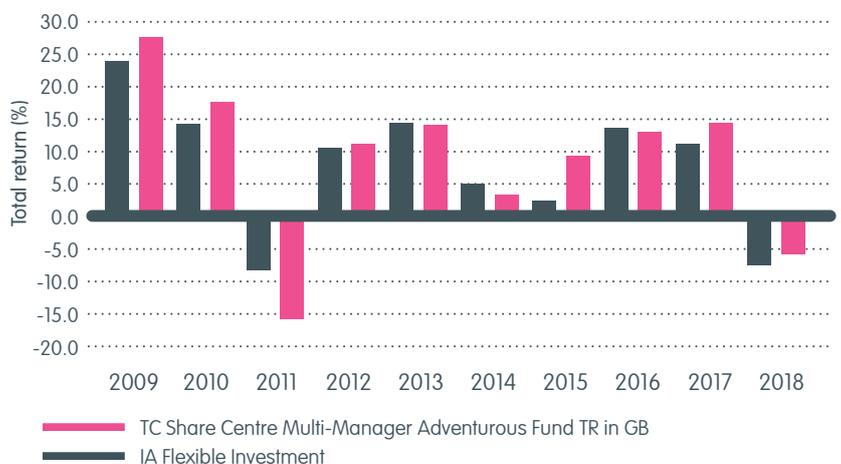

On a discrete relative bid to bid basis from Q4 2017 to Q4 2018, the TC Share Centre Multi Manager Adventurous fund outperformed the IA Flexible Investment sector, returning -6.13% against the sector which returned -6.72%. In this Q4 the fund returned -9.47%, underperforming the sector which returned -8.27%. The fund's 5-year discrete annualised return stands at 6.24% against the sector which returned 4.77%, on total return bid to bid basis. The fund has delivered an above peer average annual return in relation to the risk it has taken over 5 years period.

We have delivered positive returns in eight of the past ten years, generating annualised return of 7.88% against that of the sector, 7.42%, over ten years. Though we were not immune from the wide spread sell-off, we continue to stand by our commitment to positive returns, low volatility and a smooth ride and not too many surprises for our clients.

ASSET PERFORMANCE

MONTHLY RETURNS FOR THE QUARTER ENDING DECEMBER 2018

In October, US technology stocks took a tumble, pressured by lingering concerns over interest rates, corporate earnings and valuations. Markets around the world felt the knock-on effect of the fall.

The decision by the FED to leave rates unchanged in November helped propel the US stock market whilst the falling oil price saw its energy stocks suffer. The Eurozone market failed to pick up in the month as the political unease in France and Italian budget wrangling cast a shadow.

The US stock market saw a sharp dip during December, fearing a softening in growth, hawkish Fed rate policy, trade policy uncertainty and further drops in oil price. A sell-off swept through tech, energy, material and financial sectors and weighted on global markets, which saw Japan enter a bear market.

A delayed Brexit vote continued to heap pressure on sterling and UK equities. Over the period, all major stock markets endured agonizing losses; bonds outperformed and gold saw a solid gain in the turmoil.

Gold the Protector

Stock market volatility in the 1970s resulted from flat returns from stocks, oil price shocks, political instability and central bank policy that led to stagnant economic growth. Whilst the market parallels are not like for like, similarities certainly exist and these could even be sufficient enough to give investors a guide base to understanding the direction of gold prices ahead.

Rising rates pose threat to growth, as government, corporate and personal cost of servicing debt rise. Recently released economy data also indicates the slowdown in global growth, especially a slowdown in China. The Political status quo has been challenged on a number of fronts, notably in Europe there is Brexit. All of these have contributed to a wide spread sell-off in stock markets in Q4 and resulted in almost all major asset classes landing in negative territory, except for gold which has once again proven to be a trusted friend to anchor to in the stormy market condition.

Invest in India's Potential

In Q4, the global equity market experienced a wide spread sell off. However, India's stock market managed to insulate itself from the latest turbulence, MSCI India outperforming MSCI World and MSCI China by 16.33% and 13.58% respectively.

In recent years, India has enjoyed good macro conditions primarily led by subdued inflation, lower interest rates and commodity prices, especially oil, a manageable current account and an appreciating currency. India has been growing by leaps and bounds compared to most developed countries and is expected to grow at a consistently high rate for the next few decades. The prospect of it overtaking China as the world's fastest growing economy in the foreseeable future has not gone unrecognised. This is to the credit of ambitious government reforms, rising consumer demand, highly educated human capital and an enhanced foreign investment environment.

The outlook for India's stock market remains positive on expectations of further economic reforms, lower interest rates, surging consumer demand and growing corporate earnings should all be supportive. The Indian stock market historically traded at premium but currently it is traded below its historical average. While compared to the emerging market as a whole, the valuations are expensive right now, which might deter short-term investors and investors looking for lower cost assets, today's expensive stocks may be irrelevant in the future because of India's significant opportunity for growth.

NOTABLE CONTRIBUTORS

ETFs Physical Gold provided us a generous return in the stormy market conditions.

Jupiter India delivered a positive return, acting as insulation from the global market turmoil in Q4. The region has been a beneficiary of a falling oil price.

HSBC MSCI EM Latin America ETF strengthened as the market welcomed Brazil's newly elected president and expectation around reforms.

NOTABLE DETRACTORS

Legg Mason Japan Equity tumbled reflecting the downbeat global sentiment and Japan's gloomy economic forecast.

iShares S&P 500 Information Technology Sector ETF declined sharply due to the fear of stale earnings growth in the US technology sector.

LF Miton US Opportunities' exposure to mid-caps and the impact of a 33% fall in holding in FedEx weighed on returns.
